NO HOPE LEFT FOR PEACEABLE TERMS

ATTITUDE OF HUERTA LEADS TO CONVICTION THAT NOTHING
TO INTERVENE.

By Associated Press.
Mexico City, Nov. 15.—"In view of the repudiation by Carranza of any form of mediation by or alliance with the United States, President Huerta can do no less than join him in his expression of patriotic sentiment and maintain his dignified attitude towards Washington."

This statement made at the National Palace today is taken by well-informed parties to cast doubt upon the renewal of negotiations and to mean that there is no hope left for an amicable adjustment which was believed possible yesterday.

No indication has been given that Huerta would prevent the meeting of the new congress called for 3 o'clock today.

Awaiting Meeting of Congress.
Washington, Nov. 15.—As the Mexican congress which the United States has refused to recognize as legal was to organize today, it was expected here that nothing definite would develop until that body convened. The capture of Juarez was expected to have considerable effect in Mexico City.

EMPLOYERS OF WOMEN WARNED

Special to The Times:
Austin, Tex., Nov. 15.—Labor Commissioner Starling gave out the following notice:

"Information is reaching this department that the fifty-four-hour law for women workers in many cities in the State is being disregarded, and it is felt justified in again putting all those industries that come under the provisions of this law on notice that, inasmuch as the public looks to this department for the enforcement of the statute, this department will in the future investigate and file information of violation with the courts of competent jurisdiction in all towns and cities of over 5,000 inhabitants, as the law provides, as fast as such information reaches this department.

"All interested can secure a copy of the statute by calling at the office of the commissioner in the capital or forwarding 4c to cover postage."

TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER.

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 15.—The case of William Hall, indicted on a charge of murder, will be called for trial in the criminal court here Monday. Hall is accused of the murder of Albert Osborn, whose body was found in the Ohio river last summer, many months after he had mysteriously disappeared.

LITTLE CHANGE IN STREET SITUATION

STRIKERS DECIDE THE TIE-UP IS THE MOST COMPLETE IN THE HISTORY OF RAIL-ROAD STRIKES.

By Associated Press.
Houston, Texas, Nov. 15.—There was but little change today in the strike conditions on the Southern Pacific system between New Orleans and El Paso, an important headquarters of the federated strikers and train men declared the tie-up the most complete in the history of railroad strikes. While the various proposals by the railroad officials were not met with the views of the strikers, it is believed that a possibility exists of negotiations which may lead to the adjustment of the trouble. The strikers have used their influence with the employees of other roads to prevent traffic being diverted over their lines and the policy of competing lines is said to be not to interfere in the differences.

TRIAL OF SUN CULT LEADER.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 15.—Ottoman Zar-Adusht Hanish, "little master" of the Mazdaznan Temple of sun worshipers, will face the bar of justice in the Federal court Monday to stand trial for alleged violations of the postal and interstate commerce laws. Many months ago the Government agents swooped down on Hanish's "temple" in Lake Park Avenue and seized books and papers belonging to the sun cult head. Among the papers, it is said, were found the names of many women and girls of respectability and social standing who had joined the sun worshipers. Women resident in Montreal, in Massachusetts and in many other parts, as well as in Chicago, were numbered among the disciples. Whether any of these women will be called upon to testify at the trial of the "little master" has not been announced by the prosecution.

The indictment returned against Hanish by the Federal grand jury charges him with sending obscene literature, including the "Inner Studies," to a young woman in Brookfield, Mo. The indictment was voted after Richard E. Hanish, father of the cult head, had related the life story of his son. The father, an aged musician of Milwaukee, in poor circumstances, refuted the sun cult leader's romantic story of his birth. Hanish had given his followers to believe that he was born in Persia and reared in a monastery by followers of Zoroaster.

HORSE SHOW OPENS IN NEW YORK.

New York, Nov. 15.—The thirty-ninth annual exhibition of the National Horse Show Association, the famous "Horse Show," which is looked upon as the beginning of the winter's social season, opened today in Madison Square Garden, which was gorgeously dressed up to represent a Roman amphitheatre.

In all its essential features the big annual exhibition is much the same as in the many years of the show's earlier history, with the only difference that this season there is to be a little more variety in the character of the ring contests than in former years, and some few additional

JUAREZ CAPTURED BY REBELS TODAY

FEW STRATEGICALLY OF THE BATTLE CHIEF SURPRISED FEDERAL GARRISON OF

By Associated Press.
El Paso, Texas, Nov. 15.—The city of Juarez, opposite here, was captured this morning by the rebels. The rebels, numbering 7,000, were led by Gen. Pancho Villa and Gen. Herrera. The constitutionalists arrived in Juarez thought to carry federal reinforcements and prepared for the fight undiscovered. The surrounded federalists were assembled and answered the first fire, but were so demoralized by the attack that they offered no serious resistance.

The city surrendered at 5 o'clock, two hours after the assault began. The losses on either side are not known, but are not believed heavy. Bullets fell like rain in El Paso.

Three Americans are reported killed in Juarez. United States soldiers were hurriedly rushed to the river front to prevent Americans crossing into Juarez.

Juarez is the most important port of entry in Northern Mexico. Villa's strategy was one of the cleverest in Mexico's history. The federalists thought him attacking Chihuahua Thursday and rushed reinforcements there. He never really pressed Chihuahua. He made all arrangements to transport troops secretly to Juarez, left a small force to keep up the appearance of attack and reached Juarez just at the time the federal troop train was expected there.

Later reports give the killed as Mexican federalists and four rebels. Charles Sangerson of El Paso and two other unidentified Americans were killed during the fighting.

SIGNAL HONOR FOR DAUGHTER OF TEXAS

classes will stir the enthusiasm of horse lovers and horse owners in the boxes and around the tanbark arena.

The harness horse, which lost much of its popularity with the advent of the automobile, has apparently been restored to favor, for the high-steppers are more in evidence at the present show than at any exhibition of the past half dozen years. The saddle horse classes, also, have filled this year better than ever. It seems as if the women have striven to outdo the men with saddle horses, and many new exhibitors have come to the front.

But, most interesting of all, are the jumping competitions, for it is this feature of the programme that gives the big show its international flavor. These competitions are to be more representative this year than ever before. No less than seven countries are to be represented, and as the conditions require that the officers shall ride in the uniforms of their own country the scenes in the ring are expected to be very attractive. This year Russia and Norway are entered, together with England, France, Belgium, Canada and the United States.

Among the largest exhibitors this year in all classes are Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Judge William H. Moore, Hon. Clifford Sifton, E. T. Statesbury, William Zeigler, Jr., Miss H. D. Atterbury, P. Ambrose Clark and William Du Pont.

THOSE POPULAR SOLDIERS.

Now that the situation in diplomatic circles is approaching an acute stage over the Mexican affair, the soldiers are becoming very popular in some of the garrison cities. It is even presumed that the senseless embargo against soldiers entering hotels, restaurants and theaters in uniform will be raised.

At the outbreak of the Spanish war—even as soon as the Maine was blown up—many cities in this country, where the soldier boys had been none too well appreciated, began to take notice of the blue uniforms. Few soldiers could pass along the streets without hearing the salutation "Remember the Maine!" and the injunction to "Give it to 'em, boys!"

To wear the uniform of a private in the United States army was no longer looked upon as discreditable, and a neat-fitting suit of blue became a much-desired article of wear. The uniform of practically a badge of honor, as many had theretofore considered it.

Immediately after the war the girls liked to be on the street accompanied by soldiers, especially those who wore patriotic sashes, adorned with brass buttons wheeled from the boys in blue. Few women appeared in public places without a familiar "cross-rifles" or "ars of the service" uniform, and one who had a commissioned officer as an escort became the envy of all.

But as it was a memory of the past, the soldiers dropped back into their position of uniformed hirelings, the girls lost interest in them because the other fellow had an auto, and the officers again began to don "tats" when they went uptown.

At late there have been many complaints from the soldiers stationed in some of our larger cities that they were being discriminated against because of their uniforms. It could not have been because of their actions, for the same men were welcome (provided they had a few dollars to spend) so long as they came in civilian clothing.

In some cases it was impossible for the men to dress other than in uniform, as an old regulation requiring all enlisted men on pass to dress in regulation uniform was revived in some of the posts, and the men were forced to obey commanding officer's orders.

The adoption of the khaki throughout the summer months made it impossible for the men to look as neat as they did in the familiar blue, even a "government straight" looking better than the dirty yellow clothing which was required to be worn.

Of course, an enlisted man has always been welcomed in public places in Laredo, and there never has been a case where such an act of injustice as denying the "rights of man" to a soldier has been perpetrated here. But other cities are not so observant of human rights as Laredo, and there are cases where it has annoyed the officers to see how their men were discriminated against in public places.

Now, however, the tide is changing. The prospect of war with a foreign nation always makes the common herd more friendly toward the soldiers, and everyone is convinced that hostilities cannot be long delayed unless Huerta changes his attitude toward the Washington administration.

The soldier is coming into his own, and with Mars in the ascendant, Venus will be in conjunction, and the old worship will be re-established.

FALLACIES IN ADVERTISING.

The advertising manager of a big business concern gave an address the other day to a bankers' association, in which he treated of the "eight fallacies of bank advertising." According to the speaker they are the following:

That anything that talks about his bank is advertising; that every expenditure for printer's ink is advertising; that when the banker gives out an interview saying that the times are good or bad anyone believes he says so; that charity contributions are advertising; that merely buying space in the town paper is advertising; that the glad hand in the advertising can overcome the frozen face behind the chilled steel gratings; that your secretary is so good or bad anyone believes what he says; that the write-up, the picture of yourself, the page in the special edition, the syndicate booklet, is advertising.

The American Press, in commenting on the address, adds two more fallacies, each of which it says costs the banks of America more than all the other eight put together. They are:

The fallacy that it is not ethical for banks to advertise, and the fallacy that banking is a business that cannot benefit by advertising.

There is no reason, except the occasion of the bankers' meeting, why the address should have been made especially applicable to banks. The bankers are not the only ones who suffer from fallacies concerning advertising. There is hardly a business concern which does not suffer more or less from some preconceived but none the less fallacious idea concerning its advertising.

As the speaker said, every expenditure for printer's ink is not advertising. There are many people who have not the slightest conception of how to get the value of the printer's ink that they spread broadcast. The mere mention of the name of a business concern is not enough, no matter how many times it appears.

An exploded notion is the idea about repeatedly advertising the name of a concern on the ground that at last the people will come to look it. This is a fallacy. The mere mention of the name of a business concern is not enough, no matter how many times it appears.

Charity contributions are sadly overestimated in their drawing capacity. Some people contribute because they have a real interest in charity; others because they feel that they must do it anyhow, because others are contributing. But the most foolish reason given for a charitable contribution is that "it will advertise the business." It never did, and never can.

Most people nowadays read between the lines of the paid write-up, and they judge the advertiser by his continuing to advertise himself by talking through a third party.

There are few rules to successful advertising. Have something to sell, have something better or cheaper than your competitors, prove that you are possessed of a courteous force of salespeople, and then tell the people about it, briefly and convincingly. Continue to tell them about it until you have secured their trade, and then look up new goods and cheaper prices to retain the trade, never forgetting that a little courtesy goes a long way in holding the trade which your advertisement draws.

The New Haven road has no longer the record on wrecks. A train in Alabama went through a trestle, killing twenty and injuring two hundred and fifty more. A very "Titanic" of train wrecks.

The Mexican situation is approaching a crisis. Huerta has ordered the new congress to assemble, despite the demands of Mr. Wilson, and Carranza refuses to accept the mediation of the United States, saying that all he wants is arms. Both sides may have reason to regret their attitude.

It is hoped that when those troop trains come South, they will not have to pass through Mississippi or Alabama, where train wrecks seem to be so frequent. We can't spare any of the soldiers.

John Lind moved his baggage from the Vera Cruz hotel where he had been stopping to the American consulate. Of course, there is no reason to expect war, but the canny Swede is taking no chances. Besides, there may be some Mexican souvenirs in the baggage.

RETURNED SIX MORE BILLS TODAY

District Court Grand Jury is Still at Work Ferreting Out Crime in This County.

In the district court the civil suit of Brown vs. Yoakum, a suit on notes, which was taken up yesterday morning, was still on trial this morning, considerable time having been devoted to the arguing of demurrers. It is probable that the case will be disposed of today.

This morning the grand jury returned six more bills of indictment—five felonies and one misdemeanor. Only one of the parties indicted, Delfonso Mora, has been arrested, consequently the other names are withheld until after the parties are taken into custody. The grand jury is still at work on matters which have been called to their attention for investigation.

PORFIRIO LAUREL AMONG DEAD WILL ARRIVE THIS EVENING

Controversy May Be Precipitated, as Result of Claims of Mexican Government.

According to a telegram received by a government representative from Secretary of State Bryan, the Mexican authorities aver that Porfirio Laurel, the American citizen who was taken prisoner near Hidalgo, "was killed during the battle of Hidalgo." Such a claim is justly refused in view of the fact that Laurel is said to have been seen in Nuevo Laredo at least 24 hours after that "battle" was fought. But it now seems certain that Laurel is dead—but how was he killed?

A counter report, returned by the given the secretary of state at Washington will in all probability be sent, attested to by parties who allege they saw Laurel and the other prisoners manacled and tied to cavalry horses and compelled to walk to Nuevo Laredo with the victorious army from Hidalgo. This report, properly drawn and setting forth the facts will give the matter a different aspect.

It is said testimony was given which claimed to prove that Laurel was not an American citizen and that in executing him the Mexican government was not responsible to any foreign government. This will in all probability also be disproved, as it is said data regarding the place of his birth in Texas will be forwarded to the department of state.

Fine Picture at Dreamland.

One of the best and most interesting motion pictures shown on a screen in this city for some time past was that produced at the Dreamland Theatre last evening, a two-reel feature entitled, "Alone in the Jungle." The picture was made in California. The jungle scene, with its lions and tigers meandering about, while a young girl, who had been attracted by a lion cub goes in pursuit of the animal and is finally lost, carries thrilling sensations throughout. Finally the girl discovers a monster king of the forest on her trail, but by cleverly stepping aside and hiding she succeeds in evading him. But the mother of the cub takes up the trail and the scenes which follow holds one in suspense lest the girl fall prey to the lioness. The awe-inspiring race through the jungle, the swimming of the stream, the helter-skelter through the jungle and the final overtaking of the heroine all hold one in suspense. Just as the girl is prostrated after a fight with the lioness, with her hands, face and body clawed and bleeding, a shot from the rifle of those who had found her at the crucial moment rings out, the lioness is killed as it has the girl at its mercy and she is rescued. The denouement is interesting and the flickering of the lights indicating the end of the play, in true moving picture style, finds the girl, "disfigured, but still in the ring," in the arms of the man who plays the role of the hero.

SOLUTION OF MEXICAN PROBLEM SEEMS MATTER OF BUT FEW HOURS

Every Indication That Huerta is Finally Ready to Yield, Without the United States Being Forced to a Resort to Arms, Which Lately Appeared Inevitable.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Secretary Bryan today exchanged messages with Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City about the reported concessions which members of Huerta's official family intimated last night would be made to the United States.

Efforts of the Mexican officials to recall John Lind from Vera Cruz to discuss the demand of the United States that the Mexican congress should not meet were taken to indicate that Huerta's advisers would suggest compromises whereby congress would meet out of the country. Officials here were optimistic.

It is believed that Huerta would hold his resignation until a suitably to both factions had been chosen. Foreign Ministers mentioned as a possible successor.

Huerta May Yield.

Mexico City, Nov. 14.—Confidence in the accomplishment of the aims of the United States towards Mexico without the resort to arms which has appeared inevitable was expressed today by Charge d'Affaires O'Shaughnessy. The overtures made yesterday by Minister of the Interior Alcala are taken to indicate that Huerta is finally ready to yield.

CONGRESSMAN GARNER LEAVES

Spent Three Days in Laredo and Studied Conditions While in This Portion of Border.

Congressman John N. Garner, who arrived in the city Monday morning, left this morning for Cotulla, where he will spend a short time before proceeding to his home in Uvalde.

During the three days spent here Congressman Garner took advantage of the opportunity to study conditions on the border at this time and become acquainted with the situation as it actually exists. Whether or not he will make any special recommendations for further protection of the border by the sending of additional troops, or whether that matter will be left to the discretion of the war department, which is kept fully posted on conditions, was not ascertained.

Congressman Garner made the trip to Laredo principally to meet with his constituents in this neck of the woods and pave the way for next year's congressional campaign. Of course it became incumbent upon him to get posted on conditions hereabouts as a result of the disturbances in the republic to the south, and this he did, better qualifying himself to look after the interests of the people of his section.

DISTRICT COURT STILL GRINDING AWAY

Grand Jury Returned Verdicts on Bills of Indictment This Morning and Still at Work.

District court is still grinding away, slowly but surely. Yesterday and today the civil docket has been receiving attention. Yesterday thirty-five judgments in favor of the City of Laredo were rendered against delinquent tax-payers and other similar judgments will follow until the entire lot of over 500 cases are disposed of.

This morning the grand jury returned three more bills of indictment into court. One of these was against Jose Velasquez for theft over $50, one against Juan Esparza for burglary and in the third case the party has not as yet been arrested.

The civil suit of E. N. Brown, trustee, vs. B. F. Yoakum et al, was called today. The principals in this case, which is a suit on notes, are two leading railroad magnates—one the president of the National Railways of Mexico and the other the chairman of the board of directors of the great Frisco system.

Captured While in River.

Last evening shortly after 6 o'clock as Immigration Inspector Morris Diden was bringing a party of six aliens from the detention camp to a local eating house for supper a break for liberty was made by one of them. In the party were five Syrians and one Mexican, and it was the latter that made the dash for freedom. Diden and the men had just reached the corner of Grant street and Convent Avenue, when the Mexican broke away from the ranks and ran toward Martin plaza. Quickly deputizing two men who were standing nearby, Diden placed the five Syrians in their custody and hiked out after his man. In the chase he was joined by Customs Inspector Baird, and it was the latter who made the capture. The Mexican had reached the river and was some distance from shore when Baird turned his artillery on him. The first bullet almost gave him a shampoo and the next one caused a stream of cold air to chill him. That was getting too close for the hombre and so he threw up his hands and came ashore, for if another shot had been fired he would probably have floated ashore. The captive was taken back to the detention camp and "put to bed without supper like a naughty little boy," while Diden took the other men to an eating house and appeased their appetites.

They do not object to taking it," writes Mrs. Lafayette Tuck, Homer City, Pa. This remedy contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. RENEWS FIGHT FOR FORTUNE.

Laura Biggar, wife of the late Mr. Bennett, is fighting for her share of the estate of her husband, who died in 1902. Her share is $240,000. She is now endeavoring to recover the remainder.

Jersey City, N. J., Nov. 13.—Vice-Chancellor Griffing today in Chancery Court today took up for hearing the case of Laura Biggar, Bennett, who at one time was a well known actress, against the administrators of the estate of her husband, Henry M. Bennett. When the case was called on, the estate, which was worth nearly $2,000,000, began, it was said that the actress agreed to accept $240,000 as her share, and has received a large part of this amount. She is now endeavoring to recover the remainder.

Laura Biggar's fight for the Bennett estate has for more than ten years been sensational in the extreme. Starting life on the stage about twenty-five years ago under William A. Brady's management, Miss Biggar married an actor named Richardson, and after divorcing him was married to James Willis McConnell. Later she became the wife of Burt Haverly, an actor. While she was playing the Widow in "A Trip to Chinatown" she met Henry M. Bennett, millionaire owner of theaters in Pittsburgh and Brooklyn.

Bennett even then was so old as to be decrepit. His attentions to Miss Biggar resulted in trouble with her husband. As a result Haverly secured a divorce. Miss Biggar then left the stage, where she had made her most decided hit as Iza in "The Clemencean Case," and became the nurse and companion of Bennett.

On April 11, 1902, Bennett died, and Miss Bennett was left 60 per cent of his estate under his will. Not content with this settlement Miss Biggar, who then called herself Mrs. Bennett, put in a claim for the entire estate on the ground that she was Bennett's widow. Following this claim charges of conspiracy were brought against her, together with Dr. Charles C. Hendricks and Samuel Stanton, formerly justice of the peace in Freehold, N. J., where Miss Biggar was living at the time.

Stanton was brought into the case because he claimed to have married Bennett and Miss Biggar, and a marriage certificate signed by him played an important part of the affair. Dr. Hendricks was Miss Biggar's physician, and the proprietor of a sanitarium in which, it was said, was born the child which Miss Biggar claimed to be the posthumous child of Bennett, and which played an important part in the litigation.

The conspiracy charge against the three resulted in the jury at Freehold finding Hendricks and Stanton guilty and acquitting Miss Biggar. As an aftermath of the affair the wife of Dr. Hendricks sued Miss Biggar for alleged alienation of her husband's affections.

In 1903, and again in 1906, it was reported that Miss Biggar, or Mrs. Bennett, as she has since been known, had agreed to accept a settlement of her claims against the Bennett estate. At one time it was said she had received $500,000 and at another time the amount was placed at $400,000. It is certain that at various times she received large sums from the executors, but it is believed now that she is practically without funds. Hence, her renewed endeavors to secure the whole or a large part of what is left of the Bennett fortune.

From Wednesday's Daily.

CUBA AND THE REBELS.

If the reports from Nogales, the present Carranza headquarters, can be believed, Cuba is stirring up trouble for herself with Uncle Sam. The despatch said that a brother of President Menocal held a conference with the rebel chieftain, offering on the part of Cuba two battleships to aid the rebels in their fight against the Huerta government.

This is somewhat of a surprise, as President Menocal is a man of far more than the ordinary intelligence, was educated in the United States, and ever since his election and inauguration has professed himself as a firm friend of this country.

That the United States would permit any other nation to offer aid to either side in the present condition of affairs is absolutely impossible. The latest despatches from Washington state emphatically that the policy of the administration as regards Mexico is "hands off," and the officials go so far as to say that "it is hoped that other nations will acquiesce."

For Cuba to mix in the affairs of Mexico would be a direct slap at the American policy of non-interference, and it is not likely that Cuba would be so foolish as to embroil herself with her great protector, upon whom she has been used to call in time of domestic troubles.

It is not so long since the United States ended the second occupation of the island since the island republic became a political entity. When the latest rebellion—that of the negroes—was ended, Washington gave Cuba to understand that a repetition of disorder in that country would be a just cause for the United States to assume a real instead of a nominal protectorate over Cuba, and it was believed that the lesson had been learned.

Just what the United States may do in the premises is not yet known, particularly as our attitude toward the Mexican situation is hard to define. One day it is announced that the elimination of Huerta is imperative, and the next day comes the statement, apparently from those in close touch with the administration, that the continuance of present conditions will soon eliminate Huerta.

President Wilson announces distinctly that the recognition of the rebels and the raising of the embargo on arms is not under consideration, while some of the senators and cabinet officers say that he is now deliberating over that very plan, which some of them assure him is the only proper solution of the problem.

But it is safe to say that no outside nation will be permitted to offer the use of any vessels or armed force to either side. That would indeed be to recede from the position which President Wilson has taken from the very start, and would be a tacit acknowledgment that he was in the wrong, something that he is not likely to admit.

There is, again, every likelihood that the story emanating from Nogales is made up out of whole cloth. It would not be the first sample of mendacity that has come from the constitutional leader. His organs have been united in the statement that Mr. Wilson had promised to recognize their belligerency, despite the president's denials of having made any such promise.

Cuba probably has all she can do to take care of her own business, and it is not likely that she will risk forfeiting the friendly feeling which the United States now has for her.

SOME STRIKES.

In a recent editorial, the Detroit Free Press expressed the view that there would be less sympathy from the general public in certain strikes if all employers would take the public into their confidence as have the coal mine operators in the Colorado districts, where the governor was forced to proclaim martial law because of the disorders.

In the Denver papers appeared the advertisement of the mine operators giving their side of the controversy, informing the people as to actual conditions in one of the mines in question. It gave the payroll for the previous month under normal conditions, showing that the men who worked full time, twenty-six days of eight hours each, earned an average of more than $120 for the month.

Whatever the causes for the strike, recognition of the union, short working hours and good pay cannot be urged among them. No man who is working but eight hours a day and earning $4.50 a day is in need of the sympathy of the outside world for his desperate condition.

One fact stood out prominently in the statement of the operators: Of the 155 miners employed at this particular mine, all were Italians except four or five, who were Poles. And this is the class of men for whom the misdirected sympathy of the nation is asked; men who were not content to strike for their demands, but who armed themselves and made war upon the state of Colorado.

For this is really what armed resistance to the officers of the law means. When a number of men unite in armed resistance to the execution of the law, and not only attempt to destroy with dynamite the property of the men against whom they are waging an industrial war, but shoot officers who are sent to apprehend them, they are engaged in organized rebellion.

There are no doubt cases among the men who are engaged in the coal mine strike which are deserving of sympathy. There may have been individual workers who have not received the treatment they deserve, but they are certainly not among the men who receive $4.50 for a day of eight hours, who are working on full time unless they choose to lay off, and who probably never made as much in a week in their native land as they are now making in a day.

Public sympathy, as the Free Press says, is a valuable factor to either side in a strike, and there is no better way of winning it than complete candor upon the part of both. If the strike has merit from the point of view of the workingman, the people are generally on his side. If on the other hand the employer is entitled to the sympathy of the public because of an unjust and uncalled-for strike, he may depend upon the same view of the public as a rule.

Strikes are usually called because of an injustice done the workmen. Bad working conditions, poor pay, long hours—all these are usually the cause of the men quitting work. And the sympathy of the common people usually goes out to the man who is being imposed upon in order that his employer may make more money.

But when it is seen that there is no reason for a strike except the natural perversity of the workingmen, who want to take a lay-off, or who have become tired of steady employment, or for other reasons, then there is no good reason why the public should not take the side of the employer.

The American policy in the Mexican situation seems to be just where it was over three months ago—a policy of "hands off," which "it is hoped that other nations will follow." Let's see, wasn't there a famous general who marched up the hill and then marched down again?

After all, it is not so bad, living in Southwest Texas. Cleveland, Ohio, is now suffering from the lack of food because of a severe snowstorm, added to which the firemen are unable to reach the flames when a fire breaks out. We wouldn't trade a block of Laredo property for all of such a town as that.

A German business man stared at a policeman, and the court said that he was guilty of "a most grievous insult to an official." In Dallas a policeman would not know when a person stared at him, unless the man woke him up and told him about it.

The militants are now classed as arsonists and bomb troops, according to the part they play in the British fight for the ballot. Wonder how the Pankhurst explains the "pernicious activity" of her followers while she is absent from the scene?

Houston is now breaking into the "battle, murder and sudden death" class. A widow gave herself up to the police, saying that she had killed a man because he beat her. It's a safe bet that she is one of the red-headed variety that George Bailey made famous.

Tuesday Music and Literary Club.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Tuesday Music and Literary Club was held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John H. Davis, president. The program which had been arranged for the last meeting of the club, but which was substituted for another, was carried out at this meeting, with Mrs. Patton as leader. The program as a whole was a very interesting one and much enjoyed by the members. The subject was "The Epic," and the program was as follows: Responses: "Municipal Improvements." Table talk: "Great Epics of World—Hindu, Assyrian, Babylonian, Persian, Jewish, Greek, Egyptian, Roman, Arabian, Modern Nations." Piano—Mrs. Austin. "The Nibelungen Lied." Miss Westbrook. Voice—Mrs. Moore. At the meeting steps were also taken to secure some music and literary attractions, such as those in the lyceum circuits, to come to Laredo during the present season.

AUTOLADING SHOTGUNS

ANY way you look at it, the autoloader is the highest development in modern shotgun design. It puts five loads at your disposal by merely pressing the trigger. It puts the load to work—to eject the empty and slip in the fresh shell.

It saves the gunner's shoulder—adds his sport of annoyances—increases his shooting average.

Your danger is that in your enthusiasm over the autoloading principle, you may forget to insist on getting the finest embodiment of that principle—the Remington-UMC Autoloading Shotgun.

The peculiar advantages of the Remington-UMC are too many to detail here. What you want to do is to get one of the Remington-UMC dealers in this section to demonstrate them to you on the gun itself.

NO INDICTMENTS ARE RETURNED

Evidently the Evidence Against Alleged Violators of Neutrality Laws Was Too Slim.

Since the last term of the federal court in this city several arrests have been made by both the United States marshal's department and Special Agent Spate of the department of justice wherein the parties taken into custody were charged with minor violations of the neutrality laws. In each instance the alleged violators were given a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Foster and subsequently bound over in various sums to await the action of the federal grand jury which has just adjourned.

Among those arrested on this charge and granted bond were, Eneferio Flores and Manuel Garcia Vigil, who were taken into custody following the finding of some tools classed as munitions of war in the printing office where they make their headquarters. Sam Rotke was arrested charged with violation of the neutrality laws because a telegraph operator employed by the rebels at Guerrero, alleged after his arrest that the telegraph instrument found in his possession when he was arrested was secured from Rotke. Anastacio Plata was arrested at Webb, this county, charged with having in his possession munitions of war, these having been sent to his address from San Antonio, when cartridges and rifles were concealed in barrels of sugar and salt. One or two other cases where violations of the neutrality laws were alleged were also submitted to the grand jury, for the parties had been previously arrested and given preliminary hearings, but no bills were found among the numerous indictments returned into court yesterday and today, which would indicate the evidence was too slim for the grand jury to feel themselves justified in indicting the alleged violators.

SMUGGLERS GIVEN SENTENCES

Federal Court Sends Number of Smugglers to Jail; Haynes Appointed Commissioner.

The eighteen indictments for smuggling returned by the federal grand jury into court yesterday morning have all been acted on, with the result that several were discharged from custody and the remainder were given terms ranging from fifteen to thirty days in the Webb county jail. The disposition of these cases consumed the afternoon session yesterday and a portion of this morning's session.

Francisco Llaguno, a subject of Spain, was this morning granted a final certificate of naturalization and is now a full-fledged citizen of the United States.

Colonel James J. Haynes was this morning appointed by Judge Burns as United States Commissioner in Laredo and will act in conjunction with Judge S. T. Foster, who is also U. S. Commissioner here.

It is probable that the grand jury, which was still in session up to noon today, will complete its labors this afternoon and adjourn for the term.

Judge Burns For Home Products.

It seems to be his innate nature to carry his wife about him and to bring them out at advantageous moments, and thus Judge Burns, the popular presiding officer of the federal court keeps good humor in evidence in the court room. The judge is apparently averse to foreign competition where there are proven American goods of superior quality and he generally gives the imported article the worst of the deal. This morning a Mexican woman charged with smuggling maceral was brought before him and he asked her if she was guilty. This she could not say. She admitted having a bottle of maceral in a basket when arrested. "What were you doing with that stuff?" interrogated the judge. "Using it as a liniment," responded the woman. The judge eyed her a moment and then said, "Hereafter use Sloan's Liniment." There was considerable snickering heard about the courtroom, but the judge looked solemn and serious.

BEGIN TRIAL OF 541 TAX SUITS TWO MORE BILLS OF INDICTMENT

Large Table in District Court Room Piled Up With Legal Envelopes Containing Documents.

Grand Jury in District Court Has So Far Found Seven True Bills and Are Yet at Work.

An interesting scene was presented in the district court room this morning when one observed a large table used by the district clerk on which were nine cabinet drawers filled with legal envelopes containing the documents representing 541 suits for delinquent taxes due the city of Laredo which had been previously filed by City Attorney Winslow.

These suits for taxes will be tried at once. They represent delinquent taxes in varied amounts due the city, some going as far back as 1884. Some people have owned property here who have obviously never paid taxes. The aggregate amount of taxes due the city amounts to thousands of dollars, but City Attorney Winslow states that he intends to collect them. The first suit taken up this morning was that of John T. Rosetti, who had contested the suit and action on this suit will in a measure have much to do with other suits.

OPERATING MILITARY TRAINS

Between Nuevo Laredo and Lampazos
Trains Are Being Run, But Few
Passengers Carried

Train service on the National Lines has been resumed to a certain extent, but mail and passengers are carried only a limited distance, because the line is not open for a very great distance, in fact trains can be operated only as far south as Lampazos.

Military trains are now operating daily between Nuevo Laredo and Lampazos, principally for the accommodation of the soldiery, but passengers are taking advantage of the opportunity to travel each way. Several Americans from points in Mexico who has succeeded in reaching Lampazos were brought in on the train arriving last night. There are no indications as to when service will be resumed south of Lampazos to Monterey, for it is said the track southward is in bad shape—and then, too, there are a big lot of rebels in the vicinity of Monterey. Funeral Saturday Afternoon.

On Saturday afternoon a long and sorrowing procession followed the remains of the late Joseph J. Funk from the Werner home to St. Peter's Catholic church and thence to the family burial plot in the Catholic cemetery, where they were laid to rest. Beautiful floral tributes from many friends of the deceased attested the high esteem in which he was held in the community in which he had resided for the past thirty years and was a manifestation of the sorrow experienced by his departure. Those who bore the casket of their departed friend were Henry Borchers, John Colman, Thos. Reed, M. T. Cogley, L. J. Christen and P. J. McMahon. In mentioning the relatives surviving the deceased the Times inadvertently failed to mention his grandchildren, Miriam and Elsie Werner and Mrs. A. D. A. R. UNVEIL MONUMENT.

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 11.—The main feature of the opening day of the 17th annual State conference, Daughters of the American Revolution, which convened here today for a four day's session, was the unveiling of the monument to the partisan generals Marion, Sumter and Pickens, which the South Carolina Daughters of the American Revolution had erected on the grounds of the State Capitol. The opening session of the conference was held this morning at the Jefferson Hotel and in the afternoon all the delegates assembled in the State Capitol grounds to attend the unveiling exercises. Special seats were provided on the grand stand for the descendants of the three partisan generals and for the members of the original monument committee who are surviving. The exercises were short but impressive. Yates Snowden, LL. D., professor of history, University of South Carolina, delivered an address; then there was singing of patriotic songs by the school children supported by the university chorus and the university glee club. The cords which removed the covering of the monument were pulled by four small descendants of the three generals—Master Calhoun Shiver and Master Rembert, descendants of Gen. Pickens; Master Reid Johnson, who traces his descent back to Gen. Marion, and Master Tisdale, who numbers Gen. Sumter among his ancestors. The monument, which was designed and modelled by F. Wellington Ruckstuhl, in Paris, consists of a large bronze figure representing Victory, resting upon a massive pedestal of granite. The sculptor of the monument was present at the unveiling ceremonies.

Kindergarten Entertainment.

The children of the kindergarten under the direction of Mrs. Magnon entertained their parents and friends on Sunday afternoon, rendering a much appreciated program. Miss Berta Vargas, age five years, recited several collections. Eight little children, ranging from two to five years of age, Estella L. Bach, Berta Vargas, Beto Juarez, Elia Minus, Delfina Alexander, Elia Ligarde, Estella Ramirez, Lilia Munoz, dressed as bees, with shiny wings, sang, "The Bees," and looked sweet enough to draw honey from any flower. Eliza Ligarde charmed the audience with a lively description of the narrow escape of a tiny mouse from a naughty cat. Little Elena Ramirez demonstrated in an intelligent manner how perseverance gains a crown in a characteristic description of a monkey, which finding a bitter nut, refused to throw it away and remained hungry instead of persevering. "The Fly," a description song by ten tots, five to six years of age, dressed as flies, Leopoldo Dodier, Eliza Ligarde, Candelario and Elena Ramirez, Andrea Ayala, Alfonso Vargas, Antonio Blanco, Ernesto Myers, Lilia Munoz, Willis Minus. A recitation, "My Flag," by Alfonso Vargas, who looked like a veritable warrior; the serving lesson, by Lilia Ligarde, an exceptionally bright child. Eight little stylish "Grasshoppers" dressed in green, describing their adventures—Carlos Cantu, Antonia Vais, Josephine Leyendecker, Lilia de la Garza, Olima Martin, Leonor Castano, Lulu Ligarde, Federico Roach. The drawing lesson by Little Emory Roach, illustrating how by changing one line, the effect and meaning of a drawing is changed. A group of ten doll-like children, dressed in white and carrying garlands of daisies, sang "Sweet Daisies," keeping perfect time to the music—Alice Penn, Leonor Castano, Julia Castano, Eduardo de la Garza, Leonor Magnon, Emory Roach, Olima Martin, Lulu Ligarde, Fernando Juarez, Luisa Cisneros. "My Father," a lengthy and difficult reading by Julia Castano, and the "Good Bye Kiss," by a smiling cupid, represented by Master Francis Minus.

Health Restored by
Eckman's Alternative

Glandular trouble, very frequently diagnosed by physicians as "Tuberculosis in the Glands," has been found to yield to Eckman's Alternative when other treatments did not bring relief. Eckman's Alternative is a medicine which during the past fifteen years has brought about many recoveries even in a number of supposed hopeless cases. Read this:
257 Laurel St., Phila., Pa.
"Gentlemen: In March, 1909, my doctor pronounced my case 'Tuberculosis in the Glands,' and a number of operations in a hospital failed to benefit me. In the meantime a friend of mine advised Eckman's Alternative. The wounds in my neck were still open and in a frightful condition when I started to take it. After using two bottles I found I was improving, having gained weight, could eat and was able to sleep. I continued using it until I was well, which was in November, 1910. On November 11, 1910, I started to work and since that time I have not lost one day's work through sickness. I highly recommend Eckman's Alternative to any one who is suffering from Gland trouble."
Eckman's Alternative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Tuberculosis, Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for evidence. For sale by all leading druggists.

AMERICAN POLICY

BELIEF OF WASHINGTON OF FICIALS THAT RESULT OF CONDITIONS WILL FORCE
HUERTA TO RETIRE.

By Associated Press.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Indications today were that the American policy toward Mexico, which it was hoped that other nations would follow, was still "hands off." With the intention of regarding as illegal any loans the new Mexican congress may undertake, there has been a distinct intimation to foreign governments that their acquiescence would please the United States.

Without financial aid and with the machinery of its government pronounced illegal, officials here expect to see such a state of affairs that Huerta would be forced to eliminate himself.

There was a cabinet meeting today at which the Mexican situation was discussed, and the proposition to raise the embargo on arms was foremost, but all members refused to comment on the action.

ITALY'S KING 44 YEARS OF AGE.

Rome, Nov. 11.—Throughout the whole of Italy the 44th anniversary of the King's birth was celebrated today by the people who are extremely fond and proud of their small but energetic King. During the morning the foreign diplomats resident in Rome called at the Quirinal and presented congratulatory messages in behalf of the sovereigns and nations they represent. The city was handsomely decorated with flags and bunting and pictures of the King and the other members of the royal family were displayed everywhere. Business was generally suspended and popular demonstrations were held in all large cities and rural communities. Everywhere the attitude of the people betokened the popularity of the King which has grown immensely since the war against Turkey.

The carpenters' union in Holland has doubled its membership in the past five years.

The damage to other interests will total another million. Ten persons are missing and are believed to be dead. Suffering is widespread on account of the inability to deliver food. Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 11.—No clue had been obtained today to the identity of the steel freight steamer which overturned during the terrific storm on Lake Huron yesterday. Boats are still unable to reach the vessel.

It was also impossible to ascertain when and where the disaster occurred. The vessel may have drifted several miles. The lifesavers believe that another vessel may have sunk near the same spot.

UNITED DAUGHTERS OF THE CONFEDERACY.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 11.—The annual general convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was called to order here this morning by Mrs. Alexander White, of Paris, Tenn., the president of the organization, and the attending members, several hundred in number, were welcomed by the Mayor and other speakers in behalf of the city. The program for the gathering, arranged by the local chapters of the organization is quite interesting and elaborate and includes many pleasing social and entertainment features. The Grunewald Hotel is the headquarters of the convention and there the sessions will be held. One of the interesting features will be the consideration of a proposition by Mrs. W. D. Lamar, State President of the Georgia branch of the organization, to pass resolutions condemning "The Southerner" by Walter H. Page, American ambassador to England, upon the ground that the book unjustly reflected upon the people of the South. At the close of the convention the members will make a pleasure trip to the Panama Canal in the palatial 500-ton steamship Abangarez of the United Fruit Company's "great white fleet," which will sail from this port on Nov. 15.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy was organized at Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1894, and has now 1,380 chapters in North America and Mexico, with an aggregate of more than 80,000 members.

THE MEXICAN MONEY.

Mexican money will no longer be accepted by the border banks in this country, save at the risk of the depositor as to its fluctuating value. This has been decided upon by every bank from Brownsville to El Paso, and the clearing house at El Paso has issued a circular letter to the Mexican money depositors giving the details of the new plan of handling this class of funds.

The statement says that conditions in Mexico have injected the element of risk into the business of handling Mexican money and Mexican exchange. Says the El Paso Herald: "As the Mexico City banks no longer allow the banks even nominal interest on their balances, and as there is now no opportunity for lending Mexican money safely, the banks of El Paso cannot make a profit on Mexican money deposits to compensate them for the risk."

The banks have adopted the plan which to them seems most just to all concerned for handling the Mexican money. They will accept it at the risk of the depositor as to fluctuation in value, will place it in their vaults and will use their best judgment in placing it with the best banks in Mexico, without assuming the risk themselves.

Heretofore when a man presented a draft on a Mexican bank, the American banks have given him a receipt for it and paid him in American money at the ruling rate, or Mexican money if he wanted it. Now the banks are shifting the responsibility for this money on to the man to whom it really belongs—the owner of the draft or currency.

There is no doubt that a great amount of Mexican money is at present out of circulation across the border. Some of it has been accumulated by the looters at various places, who have undoubtedly hidden it for future use. A great deal of it is in the hands of American bankers, who have been unable to place it in Mexican banks under proper conditions with a profit to themselves, or a satisfactory settlement to the owner.

Even the Mexican dealers on this side of the border are no longer willing to take Mexican money, even at the greatly reduced valuation. The American dealers who accepted it were in reality acting as bankers or money changers, for the money had no value to them except what they could get for it at the banks.

Now that the banks are no longer accepting the Mexican currency except at the owner's risk, there is no reason why the Mexican dealers should accept it at all. They cannot afford the risk of fluctuation in value, to say nothing of the risk that the currency will be stolen in transit to the Mexican banks.

A great deal of American coin and currency is at present in use across the border, and there is a likelihood that it will remain there indefinitely because of its superior value and its certainty of redemption at face value. In some cases Mexican merchants have refused to accept anything but American money for their goods, and have absolutely refused to make prices in Mexican money.

With the uncertainty as to the continuance of the present government in power there is little reason to expect that the Mexican currency will return to normal conditions soon. And the banks cannot afford to take the risk of a loss in accepting deposits of Mexican money, particularly as they cannot make a profit in the transaction.

THE COTTON INDUSTRY.

The report of the census bureau concerning the cotton industry in the United States for the year 1909, the latest year for which accurate data is available, indicated an enormous rate of increase in cotton mills in the Southern States, and was encouraging to those who believe that the raw material should be worked up at the nearest point to the places where it was grown.

In 1889 the New England States reported 63.9 per cent of the cotton consumption of the United States, while the Southern States reported 22.4 per cent; in 1899 the consumption in the East had declined to 51.8 per cent, while that in the South had increased to 38.9 per cent; while in 1909 New England consumed only 43.5 per cent, while the Southern States reported a consumption of 45.8 per cent.

This, however, it must be remembered, does not mean that percentage of the cotton crop, but the percentage which is consumed in manufactures in this country, which amounts to but a fraction of the cotton produced in the United States each year.

Texas produced more cotton than was worked up into manufactured goods in 1909, while the remainder went to feed spindles in foreign factories, returning to this country at a greatly increased price, after paying the freight both ways, in the form of fabrics which we need, and which we could and should produce here to a greater extent than is now the case.

Over a third of the total home production of goods from American cotton is comprised in "plain goods," such as brown and bleached sheetings, shirtings, and the plain cloths for printing or converting.

Even our cordage and twine are not all made in this country, and we import such articles as could be easily manufactured in the South, close to the source of the cotton, paying a high privilege tax to the manufacturers of New England and Europe for our commonest necessities.

The greater part of the Texas cotton crop is raised and handled for the benefit of Northern and foreign manufacturers. The few mills in this state are almost negligible in number. We pay a high price to transport our cotton to foreign ports, whether we pay it directly to the railroad and shipping concerns or pay it in a reduced price for the staple before it is shipped.

In many places in Texas there are coal beds which supply a superior grade of fuel for cotton mills. In many other places there are inexhaustible water power supplies, and in almost every part of the state there is an abundance of labor which could be employed to manufacture the goods which we import at great cost for our daily use.

There is no problem connected with the lack of our manufacturing growth. It is simply the lack of an initiative on the part of those who would like to start factories and mills, and an indifference on the part of capital from home or elsewhere to the opportunities which Texas, and especially Southwest Texas, could offer them.

In the bitter winters of the New England States there is an ever present problem of heating and housing. Here these items are unnecessary to consider. Building can be done just as cheaply here as anywhere in the country, and there is not a single necessity which cannot be obtained here, except the machinery, which can be easily brought from the New England shops.

But we continue to ship our cotton both ways, and we sell nothing but the raw material.

Carranza says that if the United States will recognize him he will be able to put 100,000 men in the field. That's the meanest thing that was ever said about Mexico. We don't believe there are that many bandits in the whole country.

We hear a great deal of how much better they do those things in Germany, but the other day two employees of the Krupp company were given respectively $300 fine and four months in jail for bribing government officials. The question now it seems to us, is what will they do to the officials who accepted the bribes?

With all the revolution in Mexico, the thrifty inhabitants of that country find time to turn an honest dollar in smuggling opium into the United States. The important affair is that one of them wounded a United States customs inspector. Why don't they send a few Texas sure shots out to California?

Gov. Felker of New Hampshire honored the requisition of New York state for Harry Thaw. The case now goes to the federal courts on writ of habeas corpus. If the court will send Jerome along, we don't care if Thaw is sent back to Matteawan for life.

We feel sorry for those New York people, who have to pay 75 cents a dozen for store eggs. The highest we ever paid was 60 cents a dozen, but then we had the advantage of having the hens near home.

ON MODERN AMUSEMENTS.

Rev. C. W. Cook preached yesterday morning on modern amusements and their relation to the church. He took as his text the passage describing the first miracle of the Lord at the wedding in Cana of Galilee. In brief Mr. Cook said:

This first miracle of our Lord was performed at a wedding, where the people had invited him to be present and to take part in the innocent frolic which followed the ceremony. And right here I want to say that I believe that Christ turned the water into wine; it was really wine, and not grape juice, or anything except the fermented wine which was commonly drunk at that time.

Many people have failed to appreciate the real lesson of this miracle. Christ was present at this feast. He was a part of it. I am often questioned by people as to whether this amusement or that is proper for a Christian to indulge in. Take the lesson of the Saviour's first miracle, and in all your amusements be able to invite God to be present, and you will not go far wrong.

There is something in every heart which we call conscience, which tells one whether a thing be right or wrong. The people who ask me if amusements are wrong are not in search of information; they merely want the sanction of the church for what they want to do. They know in their hearts whether the thing is right or wrong.

It has been charged that this church believes in a wide-open, bright-lighted way, which leads, in the belief of many, to destruction. There is no foundation for this charge. The church stands for nothing that is wrong, nor does it permit a looseness of action, but it does not believe in saying "STOP doing this and that." The teaching of the church is that of what one OUGHT TO DO. If what you are doing is right in itself, don't stop doing it. If it is wrong, you should not need to be told to stop it. I read the daily papers, and when I see the name of a woman in every list of every function in the city and fail to see her at church, I feel that there is something wrong. If her health will not permit her to attend church and to give part of her time to God, then it is strange that her health is such as to enable her to attend every society function.

What we need in these days is to put an end to our ceaseless cry of "Stop doing that!" The Saviour was no doubt rebuked by the Pharisees of his time for participating in the innocent enjoyments of the wedding feast. But if there was nothing wrong in the feast itself, there surely could be nothing wrong in attending it.

The teaching of this church is constructive. It teaches that which leads to salvation, to a better life. If what you are doing interferes with your giving God that which is God's, then it is time for you to stop doing it. If, on the contrary, there is nothing wrong in your amusements, and you feel that you can confine them to the time which is their due, there is no reason why you should stop them.

When a young woman is about to dance, let her invite God to be with her in the dance. If she will do that, there is little reason to fear that she will participate in a dance which will degrade her to the lower level of the purely animal nature. And the same with other forms of amusement. They may be innocent enough in themselves, and if they are such that one can invite God to be present, they are perfectly right and proper.

CAME FROM MONTEREY IN AUTOS

Two Parties Arrived Here Last Evening in Machines Which Showed Rather Rough Use.

Two automobiles, both in a rather bad condition as a result of the long and hard journey they had made, arrived here just about dusk last evening from Monterey.

One of the cars was of Mr. George Bispham, manager of the wire mills at Monterey, who was accompanied by Mr. Arthur Derby, a big lumber man of Monterey and a former Laredoite. The other car was that of Capt. Nat Turner, who was accompanied by a correspondent of one of the New York papers who found it best to get back to Uncle Sam's domain.

The new arrivals report having encountered no rebels enroute and were not molested, and the only trouble was that which befell their machines as a result of punctures to tires. One of the machines was minus two tires as it passed through town last night, while the other was lacking inflation to one or two tires. The parties left their machines here for repairs and proceeded to San Antonio this morning by train.

CONGRESSMAN GARNER A VISITOR

Came to Laredo Merely to Shake Hands With Friends and Family After Political Fence-Mending.

With the customary cordial and warm acclaim of "What the hell, Bill, how are you," a salutary greeting was extended this morning to many callers as their hands met in friendly greeting with those of the indefatigable gentleman who represents this district in the halls of congress, the irresistible John Nance Garner.

As soon as it became lipped about that John Garner was in Laredo a number of his friends wended their way toward the hostelry where he had indited his inimitable signature on the register. Among these was his old amigo, The Times reporter. When asked as to the object of his visit here at this time he laconically replied, "Why, to meet my friends down in this neck of the woods and let them know that I am still very much alive to their interests."

Congressman Garner stated that he had taken a run down to this tail-end of his district in order to meet his old friends and shake hands with them. Incidentally he is here to patch up any rents which may have occurred in his political fences and to put up wires that will withstand any assault which might occur between now and next July, though he is fearful of no such consequences. He will remain in Laredo until tomorrow night and has a suit of rooms at the Hamilton.

LOUISIANA TO RAISE FUNDS.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 10.—In order to make the borrowing of $11,000,000 the Louisiana constitutional convention convened here this morning. The proposed amendment to the constitution, which will permit the State to issue short time notes which are to be placed at the best interest rate available so that the maturing issue of State bonds can be taken care of January 1, is expected to meet with little opposition in the convention. The present constitution does not permit of the issuing of anything less than a fifty-year bond issue. It is also specified that no interest in excess of four per cent is to be paid. Under these restrictions it was found impossible to secure funds, owing to the high prevailing rates.

WON'T RECOGNIZE REBELS JUST YET

PRESIDENT WILSON SAYS SUCH ACTION IS NOT CONTEMPLATED, NOR REMOVAL OF THE EMBARGO.

By Associated Press.
Washington, Nov. 10.—President Wilson made it clear today that the recognition of the constitutionalists and the removal of the embargo on arms is not contemplated at present.

An informal comment on Huerta's statement to diplomats that he would declare presidential elections void but would seat the new congress emphasized the attitude of the United States that this government would consider such action inconsistent. The impression prevailed that the repudiation of all acts of the new congress would be forthcoming from the United States.

President Wilson, it was learned later, is giving serious consideration to the plan of raising the embargo on arms. He asked several senators their advice, and they advised this action.

LONDON INSTALLS NEW LORD MAYOR.

London, Nov. 10.—The time-honored Lord Mayor's show took place today, and the new Lord Mayor of London, Sir Thomas Van Sittart Bowater, was formally installed in office, succeeding Sir David Burnett. The route of the procession, from the Guildhall to the Law Courts and return, was elaborately decorated with flags and bunting. The procession was exceedingly spectacular. Crowds of unemployed workmen and women were massed along the Victoria Embankment and at other points on the route, but their demonstrations were entirely orderly, and outside of keeping the throngs from breaking over the sidewalks into the roadway the forces of metropolitan police that were massed along the line had little or nothing to do.

Sir Thomas Bowater, the new Lord Mayor, is fifty-one years old and a native of Manchester. As a young man he came to London and engaged in business. He is now at the head of a large firm of paper makers. His rise to the office of chief magistrate of the city has been rapid. In 1889 he became a representative on the Court of Common Council, and in 1906 was elected sheriff and later alderman. He is a great lover of outdoor sports and expects to do a great deal while in office for the Olympic Games.

From Tuesday's Daily.

DALLAS PATRIOTISM.

The press despatches state that a number of prominent business men of Dallas decided to organize a Texas volunteer regiment to be tendered the United States in case of intervention in Mexico, offering to maintain the regiment without expense to the government until accepted.

As a sample of a needless act, this proposal of the Dallas men is entitled to the prize for this week. In the first place, the United States has, with the organized militia of the various states, including Texas, all the troops it would probably need, even in case of the Mexicans resenting intervention, which latter action seems to be not at all under consideration by the Washington authorities.

In the second place, in case the United States were to intervene in Mexico there would be many other uses to which the money proposed to be expended could be used to better advantage. In case the Texas troops are ordered out by the governor and become a part of the army of occupation, there are many of them who will need a more certain means of support for their families than the $15 per month which the privates receive.

During the Spanish-American war there were families who actually suffered for the want of absolute necessities because the husband or father, brother or son who was the support of the family in peace times was getting the meager pay of a United States soldier.

There may even be widows and orphans in case of hostilities with Mexico, and the amount which it would require to support a needless regiment until the army demands its services would go a long way towards supporting some of the women and children who stay at home.

It is estimated that the United States could put an army of 500,000 in the field at the first call, if necessary, with more to follow within a few months as soon as the necessary arms and equipment could be supplied.

It is, of course, gratifying to know that in case of war with a foreign nation there are many hundreds of thousands of American patriots who would rally to the flag. But that is natural. There has never been a war in which this country was engaged without many more applying for enlistment than were needed.

From the time when the Minute Men of Massachusetts and other colonies left the plow in the field to fight the battles of their country down to the late unpleasantness with Spain, the sons of the soil have eagerly offered their services in greater numbers than could be used.

It is not at all certain that there will be any armed occupation of Mexican soil. In fact, it is at present very unlikely that such an act will be taken by this country.

But even if it were to occur, there are enough soldiers in the continental forces of the United States to occupy for months to come any territory which would be necessary to hold. The Mexican federal army is at present widely scattered. It is poorly paid, poorly fed and, judging from the result of some of the battles, poorly officered. It could make little resistance worth while to an army like that of the United States.

And the rebels, even if they decided to unite in hostility against the American troops, would offer faint resistance to our armies for months to come, at least. They are already demanding that the embargo on arms and ammunition be lifted, in order that they may make greater headway against the federals.

The money of the Dallas people could be expended to better advantage than in raising a volunteer regiment which might never leave the mobilization camp, as was the case with some other volunteer regiments fifteen years ago.

INVISIBLE GOVERNMENT.

The report of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, now in session at Seattle, included an attack on "invisible government by organized dollars." This was in reference to the National Association of Manufacturers, brought so clearly into the limelight by the disclosures of Martin Mulhall, self-confessed agent of the manufacturers in "influencing" legislation.

The report of the executive council reviewed the testimony before the house and senate investigating committees, going into detail regarding the activity of what is termed the "invisible government." The report said:

"It has been shown to be the worst group of selfish, mercenary interests now fattening upon civilization. The officials of that organization have not denied their signatures to any communication offered in evidence. They have not denied that they paid their lobbyists large salaries and honored immense expense accounts. They have not denied that they attempted to break strikes and that their agents went to and fro in the halls of congress and frequented the rooms of its members to influence legislation in behalf of labor. The National Association, through its overreaching greed for power and pelf, now stands discredited before congress and the nation. Its influence for evil has been materially reduced."

The report concluded with the statement that "now that the existence of the 'invisible government,' the stronghold of organized dollars, has been established beyond doubt or question, now that its methods, purposes and agents have been revealed to the public, those who have at heart the interests of humanity and the maintenance of a democratic form of government are able to attack the problem with the wisdom of experience and knowledge."

But one thing must be taken into consideration in the matter of resisting the attempts of the association to control legislation. That is, the mere knowledge of the aims and intents of such an organization and of its effectiveness is not sufficient to destroy its evil power.

There is much knowledge of an organized trust in white slavery, and the people have stood against it with the terrible disclosures. But there is reason to believe that the evil organization has not diminished its efforts to enslave girls and women. The only change in its plans is the placing of all its activities under cover.

And so it will be with the attempt to influence legislation against the rights of humanity and in opposition to the efforts of organized labor. The fact that the lobbying and bribery of the manufacturers' association has been exposed will not prevent the organization from attempting further lobbying. The law should be so amended as to prevent any activity of that nature on the part of any interested party.

There have been many laws passed for the benefit of the workman. There are others still pending, and the members of congress must be shown that they cannot continue to flit with the manufacturers and their representatives while ostensibly carrying out the people's will.

There are good lobbies and evil lobbies. When a man is shown to be opposed to a righteous and progressive measure, his influence should be lessened. But a corrupt lobbyist endeavors through the "invisible government" to influence congressmen to vote against what is right and proper by the specious plea that it will "injure great interests."

The American Federation of Labor has a great work in sight. If it is true to its principles, it cannot eventually fail in its efforts.

The proposal of a purity worker to prevent the use of flats by unmarried couples, "affinities" and the like, by requiring the janitor to keep the marriage licenses of all couples on file would seem to hit the nail on the head. But why confine the measure to dwellers in flats? Has he some vacant cottages?

President Wilson made it clear yesterday that the recognition of the rebels and the raising of the embargo on arms was not contemplated at present. It is plain that he believes, either would be like pouring oil on a fire which the firemen were trying to extinguish.

A significant phrase in the despatch announcing the dissolution of the Tamulipas legislature was: "There were no arrests." The correspondent failed to state the number of casualties, however.

A snowfall of as much as twenty inches this early seems like the early days in North. But the poor rancheros in Southwest Texas must be satisfied with that deep fall of peach blossoms and orange flowers.

VOICE OF TEXAS.

A Friendly Audience.

As an evangelist following equatorial ground for American trade, Theodore Roosevelt isn't a bad idea by any means. He is a good talker, and in his way, he is intensely patriotic. As a former president of the United States he did some things that make him a popular speaker before foreign audiences, especially on the Western Hemisphere.—Houston Post.

Or an Optimistic Idea.

If the state department expects that its "displeasure" at an "accident" to the surviving Maderos in Mexico City will deter the Huertian "accident"-makers from getting busy, the state department has an unhappily short memory.—Waco News.

A Good Omen.

Worms are eating the leaves from the cotton stalks, and farmers look upon it as a good omen. It is said this will leave the boll weevils unprotected and there will not be enough left next year to damage the cotton crop.—Pearsall Leader.

Keeping the Record Straight.

Bad Russell, the penitentiary transfer agent who murdered a 13-year-old convict in Houston a short time since, was tried down there last week and came clear. This is the ninth boy this year to have his life snuffed out by men who were paid by the state to defend them.—Colorado Citizen.

Disappointed Bailly.

"Try me and see," remarked the president as he put up his ducks when a republican congressman expressed regret at his reported illness. Inasmuch as the visitor was a republican congressman we think the president ought to have punched him once for luck.—Houston Post.

Oh, You Boaster!

People residing in the outskirts of the city must remember they are not allowed to beat down the quail with sticks, in order to protect the flower gardens, until next Saturday when the regular hunting season opens. It may be annoying to have droves of quail swarming over your yard, but you must obey the law.—Houston Post.

Piffle.

There is a circular out, purporting to come from the "College Men's League," in behalf of Mr. McCall's candidacy for the mayoralty.—New York Mail.

We hope any "College Men's League" fabricated for the benefit of any candidate merely because he's a college graduate will get what it deserves from the press, the voters—and its own members. Fitness of the man for political office includes, of course, education, but there is no occasion for any candidate and his crowd to stand on their toes and elevate their noses and flaunt their sheepskins. The Roosevelt club at Harvard gathered Republicans and the Taft club at Yale attracted Republicans—and that's all there was to it. Alumni Democrats voted for the other man. And all the alumni of all the colleges in the land have no place in our scheme of government as a political entity.—Waco News.

Not An Even Break.

The red light district in Kansas City was closed a few nights ago on the order of the city commission and 500 denizens of the tabooed territory took to the hills. With the closing of the gilded palaces, houses of correction, reform schools and other charitable institutions opened their doors to the inmates and according to reports, three took advantage of the opportunities thus afforded and accepted homes; the others scattered, where, no one seemed to know or care. The soiled doves are driven forth with the mark of infamy upon their brows while the despicable bipeds who revelled in their shame and luxuriated in their dishonor, are permitted to walk the streets with the golden sunlight of happiness reflected in their countenances and have the doors of the respectable homes thrown open to them. Such is life and such is the work of reform that is stirring the great centers of our civilization.—Denison Herald.

Odorless Onions.

The Dallas Times-Herald observes that "an odorless onion has been discovered, but no one has yet found a windjammerless politician." Southwest Texas produces odorless onions by the trainload every year, but even the rare soil and climate of this section cannot produce the other article. Burbank, with his science, might eliminate the windjamming but then it would no longer be a politician.—San Antonio Express.

GARNER LEAVES EVENING

Congressman Garner to Meet With His Colleagues and Discuss Routine Matters.

Congressman C. N. Garner, who arrived here this morning and will remain until evening, was a pleasant visitor. The Times office yesterday afternoon and during the course of conversation which followed he stated that he had not been summoned here for any special purpose but came merely to visit his constituents and incidentally get an insight into conditions existing on the border at this time.

It is customary for Mr. Garner to visit all parts of this district every now and then and keep in touch with the people, for he is not the representative of any certain section or county of the Fifteenth district but of all the counties composing it. "The people of one county in my district are entitled to as much consideration as the other, and consequently I show no impartiality in serving them and their interests in congress," said Congressman Garner. It was using superfluous language to make these remarks, for the people know John Garner well enough by this time and realize that in him they have a representative at Washington who is ever alert to their interests and if there is anything forthcoming for the people of this district it will not go amiss through any fault of his.

The game of the afternoon was "500," and an interesting contest developed among the numerous participants, and at the conclusion the prize awards were made as follows: First prize, one-half dozen hand-embroidered luncheon napkins, won by Mrs. L. Cattle Raising Hayco Again.

Owners of cattle residing on the Heights are going to have some animals who will be "seriously ill" very soon unless they adopt some means of preventing their stock from destroying shrubbery, vines, etc., of their neighbors, and the aforesaid will be justifiably entitled to apply any preventive possible to frustrate the cattle in their destructive work. People residing on the Heights who allow their cattle to roam at random about the neighborhood will soon be raising a "howl" when they find some sick animals on their hands. Last night some cattle were at large out there and tore down vines, shrubbery and other trees which people who take a pride in home beautification had planted. Now those people are going to set out some "dope" that will bring this nuisance to a termination.

GEORGE HAYNES' BODY ARRIVED

Was Accidentally Killed by His Brother, Who Was Tying With Pistol and it Was Discharged.

The body of George Haynes, son of Leonard Haynes, arrived here this morning from Kent county accompanied by the father, the grief-stricken wife, who is a daughter of Judge and Mrs. A. P. Spohn of Zapata county, and a brother, Benito Haynes. Here the body and attendants were met by Judge and Mrs. Spohn and several friends and the journey to Zapata was begun in autos. The funeral will be held at Zapata today.

According to the details of the sad tragedy that resulted in the death of George Haynes, who is about 25 years of age, the three brothers, George, Lawrence and Benito Haynes, who have charge of the ranch of their father in Kent county, were returning from a dance near the ranch about midnight Saturday. Lawrence had extracted his 45-calibre pistol from his pocket as the trio came along the road and was playing with it. He was twirling it about when the weapon was accidentally discharged, the bullet striking his brother George in the left eye and penetrated the brain, causing instant death. It was a most deplorable accident and the brother who was responsible for the happening was prostrated with grief. The body was then prepared for burial and brought here enroute to Zapata. The family have the sympathies of many friends in their bereavement.

Will Visit Laredo Friday.

A letter received from D. E. Colp, of the Bexar County Highway League, states that he and A. L. Westgard, who is making a map of the Meridian road, will arrive in Laredo on Friday at 6 p. m., and as it will be necessary for our people to show the proper enthusiasm in order to get Mr. Westgard to recommend the Meridian road as part of the highway system out of Laredo, it is requested that as many Laredo people as possible meet them while they are in Laredo. They will leave Laredo Saturday morning.

LITTLE LOCALS

—The many friends of Miss Annie French, who underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Mercy Hospital on Monday morning, will be pleased to learn that her condition is gradually improving. The operation was a success in every way and the young lady will soon be able to be up and about.

—Because of the non-arrival of the films in time to announce them in the Dreamland program, we cannot say more than that there will be, as usual, good pictures tonight. (Adv.)

—A new cement sidewalk is being put down in front of the Werner blacksmith shop west of the Royal Theatre, filling in the gap and making the walk a continuous one of cement from the Valdez furniture store to the corner of Salinas Avenue.

—An examination for Teachers' Certificates will be held in Laredo on the first Thursday, Friday and Saturday in December. Intending applicants should notify the County Superintendent at his office during current month.

—And still those sensational reports regarding serious matters brewing down Mexico way float about. While it is true things look equally, one should not give credit to every story heard on the seeteets.

—The following marriage license was issued yesterday afternoon by the county clerk: John H. Fairbanks to Mrs. M. Kane Perkins.

—The commissioners Court of Webb county is busy today transacting routine business.

Warehouse Destroyed by Fire.

Mr. Clovis Perron, who arrived in the city from Minera yesterday afternoon, reports that about 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning the large hay warehouse of the Santo Tomas Coal Co. at Minera was totally destroyed by fire. Stored in the building at the time was a large amount of hay valued at about $200, which, together with the structure, were total losses. Several nearby buildings had narrow escapes from being destroyed by the flames, but the good work of a hastily organized bucket brigade in a large degree contributed in saving the other buildings. It is believed that the fire originated from the work of incendiaries.

WELL KNOWN ARMY OFFICER TO RETIRE.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 12.—Col. Alexander O. Brodie, one of the best known officers of the army, will be placed on the retired list tomorrow on account of age. Until recently Col. Brodie filled the post of adjutant general of the Western department, with headquarters at San Francisco. His career in the army has been a most distinguished and eventful one. After his graduation from West Point in 1870 he was assigned to the First Cavalry, with which regiment he remained until he resigned from the army in 1877. During these 7 years he was an active participant in the Indian wars in the West.

After his resignation Col. Brodie engaged in civil engineering, mining and cattle raising until 1898, when he joined Col. Roosevelt's Rough Riders. He was lieutenant colonel of that organization and took part in its service in Cuba until he was seriously wounded at Las Guasimas and returned to New York. He was governor of Arizona from 1902 to 1905, and was then appointed a major in the regular army. He spent two years in the Philippines and four years as adjutant general of the Western division.

Despondency Due to Indigestion.

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa. "For years my digestion was so poor that I tried every thing that I heard of to get relief, but until about a year ago when I saw Chamberlain's Tablets advertised and got a bottle of them, did I find the right treatment. I soon began to improve, and since taking a few bottles of them my digestion is fine." For sale by all dealers.

BASE BALL NOTES.

It is said the Western League magnates contemplate the dropping of Wichita and Topeka from the circuit. "Rabbit" Maranville and Tommy Griffith, of the Boston Braves, have "doubled up" for a season on the vaudeville stage.

Portland, winner of the Pacific Coast League pennant, won the season's series from every team in the league except Los Angeles.

Pitcher Johnson, who comes to the Red Sox from the Syracuse team, defeated both the Giants and the Red Sox in exhibition games last season.

Jimmy Johnston, of the San Francisco Seals, leads the Pacific Coast League base stealers with 123 pilfered sacks to his credit. He returns to the big top next season as a member of the Chicago Cubs.

FOOTBALL NOTES.

Larry Bankhead's Colgate team is a hummer. The eleven is fast, heavy and full of fight.

The return of Jimmy Craig to the Michigan eleven has strengthened the Wolverines at least fifty per cent.

Harry Williams has a contract to coach football at the University of Minnesota, that runs two more years. Pogue, of the Illinois University eleven, is ranked as one of the greatest quarterbacks of the year in the West.

In case Cornish should not be able to play any more this year, Yale will be hard put for a first-class quarterback.

For the past two years the Penn State team had every team it tackled faked. But this season the "Statlers" are sorely up against it.

The Cornell eleven is improving right along, and should be able to put up a rattling good contest in its annual combat with Pennsylvania.

Just to show how different it is to distinguish football players in action—"Pooch" Donovan, the Harvard trainer, was unable to pick out his own men in a recent game at Cambridge.

By Associated Press. Washington, Nov. 12.—Conferences between William Bayard Hale and General Carranza at Nogales are interpreted in official circles here as the first open move of the United States government to show interest in the constitutional movement. Mr. Hale is expected to report on Carranza's personal character, whether he has the united support of the constitutionalists and whether he would hold fair elections if successful. No announcements were made today as to the future American policy.

NEW YORK SPUGS START CAMPAIGN

COUNTRY WIDE APPEAL FOR THE ABOLITION OF THE USELESS CHRISTMAS GIFT FOR THE FUTURE.

By Associated Press. New York, Nov. 12.—A country-wide appeal for the abolition of the useless Christmas gift and a plea for intelligent and thoughtful giving instead were voiced last night by Mrs. August Belmont, president of the Spugs (Society for the Prevention of Useless Giving) at the opening meeting of the 1913 campaign to be waged by that organization against insincerity, compulsion and waste in Christmas giving.

At this meeting the membership rolls of the Spugs were thrown open to all residents of the United States who might want to enroll against the foolish Christmas gift. Having grown from a mere handful to more than 5,000 within a few weeks during the last Christmas season, the Spugs have outlined for this year a national campaign and hope to establish societies in all cities and towns throughout the country.

THE SPUG CAMPAIGN.

Everyone nowadays knows what a spug is: or if he doesn't, he should. The word is formed from the initials of the title of the Society for the Prevention of Useless Giving, and the aim of the society is to so educate people that they will no longer be guilty of insincerity, ostentation or meanness in making the gifts which everyone expects at the holiday season.

The society grew within a few weeks last year from a mere handful of earnest men and women—principally women—to a membership of over 5,000, and this year the organization aims to carry on a national campaign, organizing local branches in all cities and towns throughout the country.

Mrs. August Belmont, president of the society, was the orator at the meeting held in New City the other night, and her address was an illuminating exposition of the objects of the organization.

The original purpose of the society, she said, was to prevent compulsory giving by girls in stores and factories to their employers, the custom of collective giving which the girls felt they could not afford but which they could not avoid without embarrassment and possible loss of their positions.

This, however, was not the only object of the association. Another prime attainment sought was a general cultivation, by all classes, of givers, of more thoughtfulness and expression of personality in making Christmas gifts.

"We do not disapprove of collective giving when it is done on the spur of the moment," Mrs. Belmont said, "or for some particular cause, because then it means that you have collected a sense of human fellowship of which the money collected is but an expression. We do approve of it when it is for the man lower down instead of for the man higher up."

And this is one of the best motives that could animate any organization of human beings. Too often is it the case that people "chip in" for a present to some person who is not in the least in need of any expression of friendship, but who is the recipient of something which he not only does not need but does not really want.

The society, on the other hand, does not approve of what is known as "useful giving." Mrs. Belmont said: "Usually when one thinks of a useful present, it is a present decidedly middle-class or commonplace. So we do not attempt to promote useful giving in the commonly accepted definition of that word."

Above all, the society believes in early Christmas shopping and early Christmas sending, so as to help two classes of overworked employees—the shop clerks and the postoffice employees. It is often the case that one who procrastinates in the matter of buying the Christmas gifts buys some useless article just because there is not time to consider what to give.

The society has a useful mission to perform. It will appeal but little to the very poor or the very rich, who will go on giving the sort of presents that they always have given. But to the one who really wants to give something which will reflect the true spirit of Christmas it will present the matter from a new angle. And most people only need to be shown the right thing to do.

RED DANGER SIGNALS

A recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association calls attention to the peril that lurks in the continued use of red as a danger signal. It is the color to which many human eyes are insensitive, and as color-blindness is becoming more common the continued use of the red danger signal is certain to lead to an increase in accidents on railways.

Color-blindness in its most common form consists of an impaired sensibility for red and green, and the use of these two colors by railroads demands a careful color-test for all employees to prove that they possess an adequate degree of red-green color perception.

It is largely to the difficulty of perceiving these two colors that so many railway accidents are due. Red is a color difficult to distinguish in certain lights, it fades on exposure and requires frequent repainting.

The suggestion of a writer in Drugs, Oils and Paints is to adopt blue and yellow instead of red and green at the caution signals. He urges that blue and yellow are the only colors which give rise to a normal color-sensation as soon as they become visible, are permanent and fast, and are the most luminous colors of the spectrum, while color-blind persons react normally to them.

There is every reason to believe, scientists declare, that color-blindness will increase rather than diminish in the future, and as one in every twenty-five, now has a deficient color perception, particularly an impaired sensibility for red, it would seem wise to make a change in the familiar red danger signal.

Even with the most improved appliances for the safety of trains, the engineer is dependent upon the color of the signals to warn or assure him. If he cannot see a red danger signal as clearly as he could a blue or yellow one, why not use every effort to make the signals perceptible to him?

Just why red was selected as a danger-warning, says the Journal, is a question for the anthropologist and historian to determine. But it is not difficult to see just why it was selected. From the earliest times red has been recognized to indicate danger. It is the color of blood, and probably for that reason the earliest savages used it to warn or to threaten. It is the color of fire, also, and would appear to the most ignorant person to be suited to warn of a threatened danger.

But if the average person has a less keen perception of red than of any other color, there is reason for abandoning the use of red to warn of danger. In these modern times a quick perception is absolutely necessary, particularly in our transportation service. If an engineer can more readily see a blue signal, why show him a red flag or light?

The block signal system is based upon the showing of a signal to both engineer and signal man. If anything should happen to diminish the color-perception of either, so that he could not distinguish red from green—a common form of color-blindness—there would be a terrible accident.

There is no sentiment attached to the use of the red danger warning which should make its retention imperative. The only objection to its discontinuance would be the lack of familiarity on the part of the railway employees with the new color chosen, and this could be taught them in a few moments of time.

Senator Hitchcock says that he will not change his convictions to meet the views of the president. He should remember the old hymn: "While the lamp holds out to burn, the vilest sinner may return." There may be a time when he cannot hitch onto the chariot of salvation.

William Bayard Hale is now in conference with Carranza at Nogales. Just what the conference will result in is hard to tell, especially as both President Wilson and Secretary Bryan agree that so radical a measure as raising the embargo on arms may not be needed. But sending Hale to Nogales is certainly going some.

FEDERAL COURT HAS ADJOURNED

After Three Days Session Grand Jury and Court Complete Work and Terminate Session.

The November term of the federal court for the Southern District of Texas, which was convened in regular session at the federal court room in this city on Monday morning by Judge Waller T. Burns, concluded its labors yesterday afternoon and adjourned for the term.

The grand jury, which was empaneled shortly after the convening of court, returned eighteen bills of indictment, together with an important and interesting report touching upon the existence of a number of spies in this city and recommendations for their elimination or expulsion. As stated in yesterday's Times, the five parties who had been previously arrested and released on bond after preliminary trials on charges of violation of the neutrality laws, failed of indictment by the grand jury and are accordingly dismissed.

WANT TO GET RID OF THE SPIES

Numerous Spies in Laredo Have Caused Enough Trouble and Federal Grand Jury Acts.

While it is a well known fact that no microscopic examination is necessary to locate them, and that there are a number of treacherous spies in Laredo and have been for some time past, watching developments and making reports thereon, to the Mexican government, no drastic action has been taken for the expulsion of this class of undesirable. These spies pose as representatives of various kinds, but whose principal vocation is eavesdropping or putting their noses into other people's business and causing trouble. But the United States officers have "their numbers" and soon there will be an exodus, especially since the federal grand jury has taken cognizance of the trouble this class is causing.

Before adjourning yesterday the federal grand jury submitted the following special report on "spies" and there is no bandying of words in the document to allow one to misconstrue what is meant. Here is the report:

To the Hon. Waller T. Burns, Judge of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Texas.

We, your grand jurors, for the November, 1913, term of the United States District Court at Laredo, Texas, find from the witnesses examined by us that there are some fifteen or eighteen Mexican spies operating in the vicinity of Laredo, Texas, investigating military and other conditions not only of their own government but of the government of the United States as well. This fact is admitted by the officers in authority of the Mexican government. These so-called spies or secret agents are causing considerable trouble, unrest and dissatisfaction among the people on the American side of the Rio Grande. They consider that they are a privileged class of officers notwithstanding the fact that they are operating within the jurisdiction of the United States. Several witnesses before your grand jury testified that these special officers of the Mexican government insulted them while they were in the pursuit of their lawful occupations and not in any way interfering with the affairs of either faction of the Mexican government.

The conclusion of your grand jurors upon this matter is that these special agents are making the lives of the citizens in the vicinity of Laredo, Texas, burdensome, and are even a greater cause of annoyance to the citizenship than any Mexican troubles that have so far afflicted the country in the vicinity of Laredo, Texas. Heretofore there has been considerable friction on United States territory between citizens of the United States and Mexican citizens or subjects who are not desirous of in any way mixing up in Mexican affairs, caused entirely by the interference of these special agents into the peaceful business or occupation of the aforesaid class on the American side. These aforesaid special agents have also been the cause of more or less persecution and not prosecution of both citizens of Mexico and the United States in alleged violation of the neutrality laws of this country, not only in the alleged smuggling of arms and ammunition, but in following and hounding those who are in legitimate mercantile enterprises in Laredo and vicinity.

From the witnesses examined before your grand jury, it is the unanimous opinion of its body that the troubles, difficulties, strife and conditions are entirely resultant from the operations of these secret service officers of the Mexican government in the vicinity of the border. The attention of the Department of Justice is therefore solicited looking towards such action as will remove these undesirable persons from United States territory, that the citizenship of the United States in the vicinity of the Mexican border may be better protected to pursue their lawful occupations without further disturbance of molestation.

It is not at all surprising that persons who have indigestion become discouraged and despondent. Here are a few words of hope and cheer for them by Mrs. Blanche Bowers, Indiana, Pa. HUERTA DECLARES WAR,

The Last Resort of Settling the Controversy with the United States, is not contemplated.

As a result of the strained relations that are apparently existing between Washington and Mexico City governments, some interesting developments are momentarily expected—perhaps the dove of peace will once more hover over the land, or perhaps the worst may come to pass. People everywhere have their eyes open watching the outcome. Prompt telegraph service must convey the latest news to these anxious readers. And here is where the TIMES, with its Associated Press Service, gets the "dope" first-handed. Now is the time to subscribe and keep wise as to what is transpiring.

VALUE OF A CALLING.

"He that hath a trade hath an estate," said Franklin, "and he that hath a calling hath an office of profit and honor." The wisdom of the proverb should not be lost sight of by parents with sons, or by the sons themselves, facing the realities of life. It is a great thing for a youth to be thoroughly trained in some line of work which he can call his own. That is an European idea which has proved its worth in the lives of many frugal people. No matter if a boy's parents are well-to-do, the uncertainty of life remain and the additional need for character development that usually comes with an apprenticeship of some art is to be subserved. Whether it be a mechanical trade or an art or a profession, it gives any young man a tremendous advantage to start life with such an estate.

The feverish anxiety for quick results sends too many young men into life unprepared. This is an age of chance, very largely, and many are more prone to take the short cut and depend on speculation, than the long way around and hew out their way, as they go.—Omaha Bee.

HENRY CLAY BARNABEE 70 YEARS OLD.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 14.—At his cheerful and pleasant suburban home near Boston, Henry Clay Barnabee, the veteran singer and comedian who for nearly a quarter of a century was the idol of countless theatre patrons throughout the country, celebrated the seventieth anniversary of his birth today, surrounded by his numerous friends in the country. Mr. Barnabee, who retired from stage life years ago, is still enjoying good health and his years rest lightly upon him.

Mr. Barnabee was born in Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 14, 1833, and after having received a public school education came to Boston where he obtained a position as a clerk in a dry goods house. He joined the Mercantile Library Association and frequently took part in the entertainments given by the association. It was thus that he made his debut, by reciting serious poetry at entertainments. Accidentally he discovered that he had talent as a humorist and a beautiful voice. He developed both gifts and became one of the most noted church singers in and around Boston. He made his debut as a professional singer in 1865, and after a number of years of Lyceum work, became one of the founders of the Boston Ideal Opera Company in 1879. In 1887, with Tom Karl and W. H. Macdonald, he organized the Bostonians, with which company he remained until he retired.

Last year there were 1,852,341 workers employed in factories in Great Britain, $90,834 of whom were engaged in the textile trades.

Lung Trouble Yielded to This Medicine

If you are suffering with Lung Trouble, or if you know of some unfortunate person so afflicted, would you take the trouble of fully investigating a medicine which has brought about complete recovery in a number of very serious cases? Dr. Eckman's Alternative, a remedy for Throat and Lung Troubles, has been given the fullest credit of restoring health in a large number of cases. Read this:—5223 Girard Ave., Phila., Pa. "Gentlemen: In the winter of 1903 I had an attack of Grippe, followed by Pneumonia, and later by Lung Trouble. In the winter of 1904 I had cough, night sweats, fever and raised quantities of a white-looking stuff and later I had many hemorrhages; at one time three in three successive days. Milk and eggs became so distasteful I could keep nothing down. Three physicians treated me. I was ordered to the mountains, but did not go. Eckman's Alternative was recommended by a friend. After taking a small quantity I had the first quiet night's sleep for weeks. My improvement was marked from the first. I gained strength and weight and appetite. I never had another hemorrhage and my cough gradually lessened until entirely gone. I am perfectly well."

Eckman's Alternative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stomach Colds and in upbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Ask for booklet telling of recoveries, and write to Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for evidence. For sale by all leading druggists. GATHERING OF CHILD WELFARE EXPERTS.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 14.—The four-day session of the fourth annual meeting of the American Society for the Study and Prevention of Infant Mortality, which opened here today has attracted a large number of child welfare experts, physicians, statisticians, and representatives of various boards and organizations in some way concerned with the welfare of infants. Dr. L. Emmett Holt of New York, the president of the organization, called the gathering to order and will preside at all meetings.

Eugenics and prenatal care are two of the most important subjects which will be discussed during the meeting. Other topics which will be taken up and discussed fully by the scores of delegates include problems of infant hygiene and infant feeding, standards of training for infant welfare nursing, continuation schools of home-making, the relation of vital statistics to plans for social betterment, and the relation of the plan for the conservation of infant life to the general ideals of conservation.

Among those who have been placed on the program for discussion of the subject of prenatal care, which will be taken up at tomorrow's session, is Mrs. Max West of the United States children's bureau, who is the author of the recently published government document on prenatal care. Dr. J. W. Schereschewsky of the public health service, has been assigned to lead the discussion on the relation of heat and infant mortality. A symposium on the use of vital statistics in preserving infant life will be opened by Dr. W. C. Woodward, health officer of the District of Columbia. This will include brief statements by various health officers and others on the necessity of bettering the system of keeping birth statistics in this country. Dr. Cressy L. Wilbur of the census bureau is expected to be one of the speakers on that subject.

YALE AND TIGER FOLLOWERS GATHER.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 14.—Thousands of followers of the colors of Yale and Princeton are gathering here for the game which will award football honors to one or the other university tomorrow. Hotels, clubs, fraternity houses and dormitories have been thrown open to the visiting classmen and graduates, and a large part of the city is gayly decorated in their honor.

Tomorrow's game will be played on the fortieth anniversary of the first meeting of Yale and Princeton on the gridiron. The initial contest between the two colleges took place here Nov. 15, 1873, and was won by Princeton. No games were played in 1874 and 1875, but the two universities have met every year since. Of the thirty-eight contests Yale has won twenty, ten have been won by Princeton, and there were eight ties.

Interest in tomorrow's game is intense, despite the fact that Yale's showing this season has not been such as to inspire her followers with an overabundance of enthusiasm. There has been no diminution in the demand for tickets, however, and a record-breaking crowd is expected to be on hand. The officials of the game will be: Referee, William Langford, Trinity College; umpire, N. E. Snow, Michigan; linesman, David Fultz, Brown University.

INSTALLED AS HEAD OF HOBART COLLEGE.

Gueva, N. Y., Nov. 14.—In the presence of a notable gathering of educators, scientists and publicists from all over the country, Dr. Lyman P. Powell was formally inaugurated today as president of Hobart College. The new president comes to Hobart from New York University, where he was professor of business ethics. He is a native of Delaware and was educated at Johns Hopkins University of Wisconsin and the University of Pennsylvania.

VIOLATION OF ARTICLES OF WAR.

Once Happy Hooligan, having heard so much praise of army life and having become tired of his wanderings around the land, decided to become a soldier boy of dear old Uncle Sam.

The dignity of the military discipline, the illusive grades of military rank and the clanking together of heels, with prolonged salutes were difficult and arduous for Hooligan and on the third day he was brought up for trial before the Colonel on the following charge: "Charge, Violation of the Sixty-Second Article of War, conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline."

Minnie Dupree is soon to be seen in vaudeville, under the direction of Joe Hart, playing Ethel Barrymore's one-act piece, "Carrots."

A son was born the other day in Detroit to Mrs. Arthur Houghton. The statement ought not to be uninteresting when it is explained that she is known in the theatre as Sallie Fisher. The present is Sousa's twenty-second American season. Although Sousa's fortune is large, he will not retire from the concert platform so long as the popular demand for his band continues.

JIM MCGUIRE BATS OUT A HALF CENTURY.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 14.—Jim McGuire, one of the best known figures in baseball and at present a scout for the Detroit club, reached the half-century mark today, having been born Nov. 14, 1863. The "Deacon," as he is familiarly known, is a native of Cleveland. At the age of 20 he began his professional career with the Terre Haute club. He began the next season with the Cleveland National league team, but was released and finished the season with the Toledo American association club and was one of the players transferred at the end of that season to the Detroit club.

In 1886 the "Big Four" deal went through and McGuire was transferred to Philadelphia with Wood and Casey. The following season McGuire played with the Phillies and made a great record, but in the early part of 1888 he was again transferred to the Detroit club, and later on to his first love, the Clevelanders. The Toronto club snapped him up in 1889, and in 1890 he was with the Rochester. From 1891 to 1897 he was with Washington and during the next five years he played with Brooklyn. In 1902 he jumped to the Detroit American league club and the next season he was transferred to the New York Americans. After 25 years of yeoman service upon the diamond, McGuire became manager of the Boston Americans in 1906. Later he filled a similar berth with the Cleveland club. He was a well known figure on the diamond long before some of the present-day stars were born. Notwithstanding this fact, the "Deacon" is by no means an applicant for membership in the down and out club.

A GAME OF BLUFF.

It is evident from the latest developments that the Mexicans were only attempting a game of bluff in their diplomatic struggle with the United States. When it became inevitable that the great powers were unanimous in their decision to stand by President Wilson, the Huerta cabinet united in urging the provisional president to submit to the demands of the United States government, and—he yielded.

At least, that is the understanding of the message that Gen. Huerta had consented to let the cabinet make concessions which they believe will be satisfactory to the United States.

They have known all along that there was no concession which would satisfy Mr. Wilson except the absolute elimination of President Huerta. That has been repeatedly stated to them in no unmistakable terms. Even Huerta himself understood it, and only his determination to hold an office which he claimed to have the right to hold has prevented him from coming to satisfactory terms with this country.

The statement that Minister Moheno is mentioned as a possible successor to Huerta has no particular meaning at present. He is one of a dozen that has been mentioned, and there is no proof that he would be any more satisfactory to either the Washington administration or the Mexican people than the present incumbent.

There is one thing certain. The successor to Gen. Huerta must be, to please the Washington administration, a man who can give promise of governing the republic by more constitutional methods than those of Gen. Huerta. He must be popular with his own people, in order to give the assurance to the Washington authorities that he will be the popular choice of the entire nation, not a faction.

And this is exactly what no man now living can do. There is no one man in the world who can please all the warring elements of Mexico, nor is it possible to select one who would really be a choice of the majority.

The claims of Venustiano Carranza that he is the choice of the people of Mexico as "supreme chief" are too ridiculous to be considered. He is self-assumed chief of a rebellion, one of several in history, and his authority is not always respected by even his own followers.

The friends of Manuel Calero, of Gamba, and others who have been mentioned in connection with the presidency would not be willing to unite on one person for the chair, and any election which may be held will result in the same lack of unanimity as has been the case when an election was held—only a small percentage of the voters going to the polls.

Whoever is chosen by the people of Mexico to be provisional president pending an election will have his hands full. But if he is satisfactory to the Washington administration, he will have the backing of the United States in his attempts to bring order out of chaos and to prepare the people for a formal and legal election, if such an election can ever be held there.

The news that the matter is about to be settled without a resort to arms is gratifying to most of the citizens of the United States. There are few who would be willing to go to war with our neighbor, even over abuses of our own people, let alone a usurpation of power by anyone.

We can find better uses for our money than spending it in a needless war with another nation. But if the negotiations should fall and war should become necessary, it should be prosecuted with the utmost vigor and an end put to the useless bloodshed.

LIQUOR PROSECUTIONS.

Even since the passage of the nine-thirty saloon closing law and the anti-shiping law, a great activity has manifested itself among a certain class of people who have rarely bothered themselves over the enforcement of the other laws on our statute books.

The various rulings made by the attorney general's department would in effect make new laws for enforcement, and it will take the supreme court to decide as to the correctness of the rulings, particularly with regard to the nine-thirty closing law.

The Denison Herald says that there is no doubt but what the attorney general will rule that roofs over saloons are contrary to law and must be removed, should the question be put to him. Almost equally drastic is the ruling that even the proprietor may not remain in his saloon for the purpose of cleaning up after the closing hour.

This is manifestly an absurdity. Under the old law, saloons were closed on Sunday and after midnight during the week. Yet there never was a question of the right of the saloonkeeper to clean up his place of business after closing hours, or even on Sunday, providing he permitted no dispensing of liquor at such times.

The intent of the law is clear and plain. It is to prevent the selling of liquor after 9:30 p. m. Any other interpretation must be written into the law, and of course the people who would like to see the saloons put out of business are going to read into the law any interpretation which will please them.

The editor of the Port Arthur News, in commenting on a paragraph in The Times, asks: "Wasn't it regulation the saloons wanted? Well, that's what they are getting."

The law prohibiting the shipping of liquor into dry territory is equally plain. It prohibits dealers from shipping liquor to any person living in a dry town or county, and punishes any common carrier who handles such shipments, as well as the person ordering or receiving them.

But it permits any person living in such territory to bring in such liquors as he may want for personal use or for the use of his family. This is the reading of the law, which not even the most pronounced prohibitionist can change into anything else.

But certain active opponents of the liquor traffic, not content with the law as it stands, are attempting to read into the law a prohibition of the use of liquor in any dry territory, and attempts are to be made, it is boldly announced, to prevent any person from bringing in liquor in such amounts "as would indicate an evasion of the law."

The law does not limit the amount which a man may bring home for his own use or that of his family, and these self-appointed judges are about to settle that question for themselves. If, in their estimation, a man has in his possession more liquor than he could reasonably use, he is to be prosecuted for violation of the shipping law.

Just what constitutes a reasonable amount is not stated by these guardians of law and order. It is presumed that anything over a spoonful is "too much," and we may look for many prosecutions, costing the state much money, and the inevitable decision by the upper courts that the defendant is not guilty.

In the meantime, why not enforce some of our other laws?

There seems to be small comfort for the rebels in the reports from diplomatic circles in both Washington and Mexico City. But the rejection of all offers from Washington placed Carranza beyond any consideration in making terms with the Mexican government.

Twenty-five hundred men in the employ of the Southern Pacific lines have struck, and as they claim to have a million and a half in the treasury to support the strikers, it is likely that they will remain out until a satisfactory agreement with the road officials is reached. Meanwhile, as usual, the traveling public will suffer.

Minister Moheno is mentioned as a possible successor to Gen. Huerta. It is reported from Washington that Minister Moheno may be more agreeable to the Washington administration, but what will the Mexican people say about it?

The latest developments have demonstrated that the Mexican diplomats could never learn to play poker. But isn't it the case with the little bluffer?

GERHARDT HAUPTMANN.

Gerhardt Hauptmann, who is declared by many critics to be the greatest figure in German literature today, was born in Silesia, Nov. 15, 1862. Unlike some men who have grown famous in his childhood the future author gave little promise. At the University of Jena his genius first began to unfold. Filled with admiration for the works of Tolstol, Zola and Ibsen, the young man wrote his earliest realistic play. It was produced in Berlin in 1889 and was successful. From that hour the young playwright's vocation was clear to him. Soon he became to be looked upon as the champion of the "new movement." "The Sunken Bell" is regarded as Hauptmann's masterpiece.

HELD CONFERENCE LAST NIGHT

Representative of Trans-Continental Highway Met With Laredo People in C. of C. Rooms.

A. L. Westgart, vice-president and director of the Trans-Continental Highway League, Washington, D. C., arrived here last evening in his big touring car accompanied by Mason Maney of Pearsall.

Shortly after their arrival they took supper and later repaired to the Laredo Chamber of Commerce room, where a conference was held with several of the directors, secretary and other citizens. During the conference matters pertaining to the three big trans-continental highways which the league has in contemplation extending from the Canadian border to the gulf and from ocean to ocean was discussed with a view of enlightening those present on the work proposed.

At this time there is a bill before congress to provide for a national highway commission, prescribing its powers and duties. It is proposed to put Laredo on the line of this great roadway and thereby connect it with the greatest road system in the world. The national league is also supporting the proposition for the building of the military road from Laredo to Brownsville, which was given an impetus at the good roads meeting held recently at Pearsall. Great results are expected to accrue from the meeting held in this city last night with Mr. Westgart.

This morning the party and several citizens in the big auto proceeded to the international bridge, backed up to the monument, had their photos struck at the boundary line and then rushed back to this side. This unexpected stunt, done merely as a matter of interest, caused somewhat of a furore on the other end of the bridge, as the soldiery stationed over there could not comprehend what it all meant, but the auto party just wanted to have their "picture taken" at the boundary monument.

Want to Contract.

Announcement.

We wish to call the attention of the moving picture public to the film production of Daniel Frohman's "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," featuring Mrs. Elsie, the famous emotional actress, to be shown at the Star Monday night, Nov. 17.

There are a great many people who say there are no moving pictures worth paying 20c to see. That is a mistake. There are different values in moving pictures just the same as in clothing or anything else. Don't be prejudiced; see the picture first and then pass judgment—and tell us. We cannot play Daniel Frohman pictures for less than 10c and 20c.

It is just a question of whether or not the public of Laredo desires this class of pictures. Frohman releases features, one every two weeks, and we will get them every alternate Monday, or twice a month. The prices will be raised to 10c and 20c on those nights only. Every other night will be 5c and 10c as at present.

If the public will give us the patronage at the advanced prices, we will continue to show these high-class productions, otherwise we will be almost compelled to discontinue them and run our regular program.

We believe there are enough people in Laredo who appreciate something above the ordinary to support these pictures twice a month, and we invite you to be present and see a production that is in a different class from the everyday kind.

LITERARY DAY WITH TEACHERS

Fourth Session of City Teachers' Institute Held at Grammar School This Morning.

The fourth session of the teachers' institute of Laredo was held at the Grammar School building this morning and proved of much interest to all those who participated and attended.

It was "Literary Day," with Miss M. E. Surratt as reader.

Roll call was answered with quotations from literature.

An interesting paper by Miss Amar Penn on "Literature for Children," was followed by the relating of stories for children, as follows: "The Forty Wrecker," ethical, by Miss Kate Tarver; "Tally-Po," dialect and for amusement, by Miss Elizabeth Merrim; "The Little Red Hen," symbolical, by Miss Myrtle Polk-Inhorn; "The Story of the Flag," epical, by Miss Amar Penn. All of these stories were told in a manner that elicited attention and appreciation.

"Biographies of Children's Authors,"—"Hawthorne," Miss Sarah Rice; "Longfellow," Miss Margaret Jarvis, were given by the teachers to whom these subjects were assigned in a creditable manner.

Miss Mary Hickey in "Moral Effects of Memory Games," and Miss Maria Cardenas in her reading in Spanish both proved interesting papers.

County Superintendent Richardson delivered an address on "Practical Principles in Teaching" which was listened to with keen interest by all the teachers.

"Sutton & Horn's Schoolroom Essentials," chapters 13 and 14, was given by Miss Carmen Merriweather.

An interesting paper, "The Great Epics of the World," by Mrs. J. B. Putron, proved a treat that was highly appreciated and of great interest to all who heard it.

LIEUTENANT RICH KNOWN HERE

He and His Brother Received Commissions While Here For Services in the Field.

Yesterday the Times contained an Associated Press dispatch bearing a Manila date stating that Second Lieutenant Perry Rich of the Philippine Scouts had met his death when his hydroplane fell into Manila bay. Presumably he was drowned instead of being killed by an accident before the fall.

Lieutenant Rich was well known to a number of Laredotes, having previously been stationed at Fort McIntosh. Just after the close of the Spanish-American war Perry and Charles Rich, two brothers who had served with distinction in the volunteer army and had applied for commission in the regular army received their commissions while at this post. They remained here for some time after and a few years ago Lieutenant Perry Rich was assigned to duty with the Philippine Scouts and made a good record. He was evidently in the Aerial Corps when he met his death.

How to Detect the Alum Baking Powder

"Which are the alum baking powders; how can I avoid them unless they are named?" asks a housekeeper.

Here is one way: take the can of a low-priced powder in your hand and read the ingredient clause upon the back label. The law requires that if the powder contains alum that fact must be there stated. If you find one of the ingredients named alum, or sulphate of aluminum, you have found an alum baking powder.

There is another and a better way. You don't have to know the names of the alum powders. Use Royal Baking Powder only; that assures you a cream of tartar powder, and the purest and most healthful baking powder beyond question.
